

LANGSDALE'S STUDENT WORKERS

Paul Gonzalez (above) spent last fall working as a student assistant in the Special Collections Department organizing the WJZ-TV Collection. This spring, he will work as a student intern and will focus on digitizing the Telefair Papers, American Civil Liberties Union Collection. He is a senior jurisprudence major and plans to go to law school after graduation.

A junior history major, Tyeshea Neal (left) also works in Access Services and plans to attend law school after graduation. She works at the Library's circulation desk.

Naim Alali (below) works in Access Services, a freshman originally from New York. He now lives in Woodlawn and is a business major interested in entrepreneurship.

Last fall, Steve Barrett (right) undertook an internship digitizing the Movement Against Destruction Collection, a resource that has attracted researchers from the likes of UCLA, The Johns Hopkins University, Boston College and the University of Michigan. He expects to complete the project this semester.

Benjamin Hicks (above) is a graduate student in the Publications Design program. This semester, he will digitize the MASH Glass Negative Collection.
